Learning Outcomes

- To examine our assumptions about time and current uses of time for professional learning.
- To share practical school examples of ways to create time among teams of educators who share common professional learning needs.
- To consider the policy implications associated with shifts in the use of time for collaborative professional learning.

Guiding Questions

- What are our assumptions regarding the use of time for professional learning?
- How well is professional learning time used now?
- What is the problem and why is it important to address it?
- How are some districts/schools finding time and planning for its effective use?
- What policy language supports the issue of time for professional learning?
- What resources/tools can we take away and use to reveal our own assumptions, evaluate our use of time, and gauge our progress with time use and results?

Step 1: Forming a Time Study Team

Addresses engaging representatives from various parts of the school or school system community to participate in the time study process and determining who will develop recommendations for the decision makers

Step 2: Examining Assumptions about Time

Describes processes for assessing current perceptions held about time for education. Understanding personal assumptions about time early in the process will provide fundamental information for the Time Study team as they engage in their work.

Step 3: Examining Existing Time

Includes strategies for conducting an analysis of how time is currently used to inform the work of the Time Study team. In some cases, repurposing existing time is the first way to increase time for collaborative professional learning.

Step 4: Studying Time Options

Provides resources and guides the Time Study team as members examine models from other schools and school systems to inform their work.

Step 5: Forming and Adopting Recommendations about Time

Launches a public discussion about how to fulfill the need within the given parameters. After developing concrete recommendations, members of the Time Study team should decide how to vet them for consideration and modification before they make final recommendations.

Step 6: Establishing a Plan to Implement and Evaluate Accepted Recommendations

Is an essential part of the work. Ongoing monitoring and assessment can generate information about the efficiency and effectiveness of the time investment.

Step 7: Reviewing Time Use and Results

Provides ongoing data to make adjustments and improvements in the use of time to achieve the maximum benefits for both educators and students.

Tool 2.3 Staff Perceptions About Collaborative Time

Where are we now?

Our school includes time during the contract day for teachers to learn and work together in teams whose members share common goals (school, grade level, department, etc.) for student learning.

Strongly Agree Agree Neutral Disagree Strongly Disagree

In our school, professional learning occurs primarily during the school day.

Review of the Survey Staff Perceptions About Collaborative Time

- How could you use this survey?
- Who would you use this survey?
- How might you adapt the survey to meet the needs of your district/school?
- Are there any statements that are not being asked about staff perceptions of collaborative planning time that might need to be added?

Tool 4.1 - Studying Time Options

- Sample criteria might include:
  - Enables all teachers in a grade level or department to meet together at least three times per week for a total of three to four hours
  - Ensures that educator workdays and years fall within the parameters of existing agreements or contracts
  - Works within the existing budget
  - Does not adversely impact a single group of teachers such as those in singleton or special areas
  - Is compatible with student transportation needs
  - Is compatible with family after-school care needs and community after-school providers

Tool 4.2 – Model Schedules

Sample schedules on pages 49-58 in workbook.
