Charge Up Your Learning with Social Media

Tammy Neil, Educator Suwannee County

tammy.neil@suwannee.k12.fl.us

While the actual act of learning is not changing, how we gather information and process it is. Educators at all levels are no longer waiting for their districts to provide professional learning opportunities. They are actively seeking knowledge to hone their craft in a variety of online avenues. This session will explore how Social Media is quickly becoming the place for educators to meet, collaborate and support each other's professional growth. Attendees will also learn about a variety of tools available to document their own online learning.

Developing, Empowering, and Retaining Teachers

Toni Buxton, Sr. Administrator, Professional Development Certification Program and Mandy Butterfield, Program Specialist, Orange County

toni.buxton@ocps.net mandy.butterfield@ocps.net

Orange County Public Schools is a large urban school district focused on developing, empowering, and retaining teachers through induction. District facilitators, school based instructional coaches and mentors are provided with specific, ongoing professional learning in order to develop beginning teachers. We guide teachers to success utilizing research based strategies and materials during face-to-face and online instruction. Our induction program promotes teacher retention and satisfaction in our beginning teachers and teacher leaders.

Engage, Ignite and Inspire!

Michelle Surman, FDLRS/SPRINGS, Learning Resource Specialist

michelle.surman@marion.k12.fl.us

Come and build your repertoire of engagement strategies. Learn how to increase participation during professional development sessions, to include brain-based strategies. Step away from traditional approaches and toward techniques to enhance professional development.

Fostering Collective Teacher Efficacy
Jenni Donohoo, Consultant Corwin Press

A key to turning around schools that struggle to support student-learning lies in the ability of formal and informal leaders to cultivate collective efficacy. Exemplary leadership practices highlighted in the research and considered highly effective in relation to developing collective teacher efficacy will be explored throughout this session. In addition, understanding and attending to school characteristics associated with collective teacher efficacy will increase the likelihood that collective efficacy will be enhanced. Participants will consider how to plan and organize actions, implement changes, observe and monitor outcomes, and reflect on strategies for fostering collective teacher efficacy.

Personalized, Competency-Based Professional Learning w/ Micro-credentials

David Hass and Noris Aguayo, Program Specialists Lake County
hasd1@lake.k12.fl.us aguayon@lake.k12.fl.us

Micro-credentials provide teachers different approaches to professional learning that are flexible, responsive, individualized and competency based, while honoring teacher voice and choice. Explore best practices, lessons learned, and a celebration of a shift in paradigm.

Professional Learning Support Teams
Carmen Concepcion, Executive Director and Isela Rodriguez, Teacher Leader Miami-Dade County carmenconcepcion@dadeschools.net iselarodriguez@dadeschools.net

Come learn how Miami-Dade County Public Schools' Office of Professional Development and Evaluation (OPDE) provides a scaffolded system of support for school, region, and district leaders that includes the expansion of a Professional Learning Support Team (PLST) at every school.

Zoom In, Zoom Out: Collective Efficacy in Practice
Meg Roa, Specialist, Prof. Learning/School Improvement Volusia County mrroa@volusia.k12.fl.us
Vincent Haigh, 7th Grade STEM Teachers, Kellie McClarity, Science Coach, Kristin McCrory, Literacy Coach, Galaxy Middle School

How do you respond when you learn collective efficacy has a 1.57 effect size? Volusia County Schools says, "Together We Can!" Come see how we foster a mindset of collective efficacy as a district through professional learning initiatives, and at our school sites as we build capacity through high-level PLCs.
